

Scenario:

You are a freshman in college who has become overwhelmed by the amount of work that you have compared to in high school. You would like something that can help you organize all of your assignments that you don't miss a due date.

Task 1: Create an assignment named "Math homework" that is due on november 14th and turn the notifications on

Task 2: Check to see how many and what assignments that you have due on October 30th

Task 3: Check your math class and see what assignments you have to turn in and when.

Notes:

Changes to make:

- Add more to the calendar and classes because both people thought they could do more than just see assignments
- Add how many days and the date of when assignments are due for clarity

Keep the same:

- It is easy to tell what buttons do what and adding assignments is easy
- The stars on the calendar make it easy to see how many things are due on what date